Technical Expert Groups created by the EBA AML/CFT Unit to advise on aspects related to the revised Regulation on information accompanying transfers of funds (TFR)

The AML/CFT Unit of the European Banking Authority (EBA) issued a call for expression of interest to join two Technical Expert Groups – on crypto assets service providers and anti-money laundering and countering the financing of terrorism (TEG-CASPs/AML), and on restrictive measures regimes (TEG-RMRs). These will provide technical advice to the EBA on those aspects of the revised Regulation on information accompanying transfers of funds (TFR) that relate to the EBA's mandates.

Members of the TEG-CASPs/AML will provide expertise on the financial crime risks to which CASPs are exposed and challenges that market participants may face when implementing the revised TFR. They will also be expected to advise on how these risks and challenges could be addressed.

Members of the TEG-RMRs will advise the EBA on systems and controls that institutions put in place to comply with restrictive measures regimes and with targeted financial sanctions, and the challenges faced while implementing these systems and controls.

TEGs members are appointed and participate in their personal capacity. They will provide their independent expertise and not represent national interests or the interests of their organisation or employer. They do not and may not represent, work, or speak, on behalf of the EBA.

TEGs members have been selected based on the criteria set in the respective calls for expression of interest, which includes the relevance and extent of relevant experience required. EBA staff selected 17 TEG-CASPs/AML experts and 15 TEG-RMRs from different jurisdictions and sectors.

For transparency purposes, the EBA is publishing the composition of the TEGs.
